NSTL water hyacinth project being reviewed

By DAN BARBER

Research scientist B. C. Wolverton said Wednesday he was "hopeful" that work on the highly acclaimed water hyacinth project at National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL) would not be disrupted and possibly abandoned by the transfer of some people working on the program.

Wolverton acknowledged that the program which is sponsored by NASA headquarters in Washington, D. C. was "undergoing a shift" which if not checked could result in the program being placed under the authority of Earth Resources Lab. (ERL) in Houston.

"I'm confident that this is just an oversight by the people in Washington," Wolverton said in a telephone interview Wednesday, "at least we hope it was just an oversight."

Wolverton said the effects of the shift could be to physically transfer some of the key project workers out of the project and reassign them to ERL in Slidell, La.

It would be impossible however, Wolverton said, for NASA to move the physical facilities of the project which include a hyacinth drying plant.

"There is just a whole change going on here as far as what is taking place now," Wolverton said. "We are in the initial phase of this thing and a decision will be reached within the next couple of weeks."

The decision is being made in conjunction with NASA headquarters.

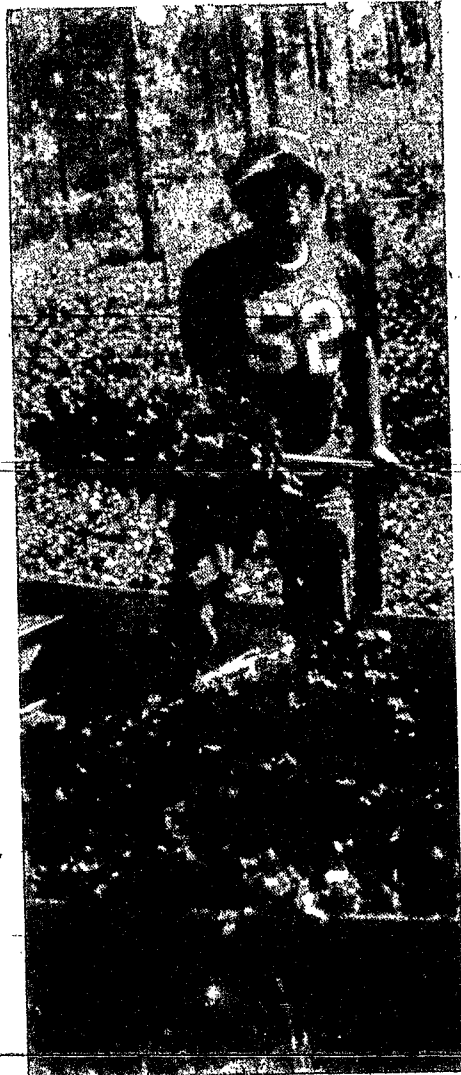

Wolverton said he was not at liberty to discuss all aspects of the negotiations without possibly placing his own self in "hot water."

"This project has taken on tremendous importance," Wolverton said, "not just locally but nationally."

The city of Bay St. Louis was one of the first beneficiaries of the water hyacinth project envisioned by Wolverton to remove polluting irons from waste water in oxidation ponds.

"The Army is interested in this thing now," Wolverton revealed, saying he would be making a trip to Denver to discuss the project with Army officials.

Wolverton's project presently involves nine people, five of which are under civil service and the rest under contract.

Ladner perturbed

Board refuses to pay beat one bills

By CAROLE LANGE

An attempt by former Beat One Supervisor Jerry Ladner to get the board of supervisors to pay outstanding bills from his administration with funds currently in the beat account failed Monday.

During 45 minutes of verbal sparring between Ladner and the board, the former supervisor said $6,800 now in the beat's road and bridge fund account could be used to pay the bills "leaving the beat only $2,497 in debt."

Dart Courge, beat one supervisor who defeated Ladner in his bid for reelection, said the bills could not be paid legally according to the state auditor, because Ladner had exceeded one fourth of his annual budget during his last three months in office.

"The beat was $36,000 in debt when I took office, but I paid everybody," Ladner said, explaining why the beat one account was in deficit at the end of his term. "If I did it then, why can't you do it now?"

He then said all members of the board on which he served were guilty of breaking the law "because we all paid bills that were carried over."

Dolph Kellar, beat two supervisor and board president, accused Ladner of "operating in left field" by referring to actions the board took four years ago.

The discussion ended when Courge pounded his fist and reiterated that the bills could not be paid legally.

It only remains, apparently, for those with outstanding debts from Ladner's remaining months in office to file suit against Ladner's bonding company. Workers who did not receive their pay for November earlier said they would not do this.

Council urges citizen input

The Bay St. Louis city council will conduct its first community involvement meeting at city hall on Thursday evening, Feb. 19, at 7:30 p.m.

Mayor Warren Carver, who proposed the idea of holding such meetings on a monthly basis, said that community involvement and citizen participation in the affairs of the community are desirable and necessary and urged that interested citizens take advantage of this opportunity to make themselves heard.

Such meetings will present an opportunity for citizens to air their grievances or complaints and to obtain information about the affairs of city government.

School board finds way to get loan

By CAROLE LANGE

A recent state statute will allow the Hancock County Board of Education to borrow $85,000 on a five year loan even though $75,000 remains to be paid on an existing loan, Sam Favre, attorney for the board of supervisors, announced at Tuesday's school board meeting.

At Monday's meeting of the supervisors, the board refused to authorize Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph's request for the loan because Favre said he thought payments on the two notes would exceed revenue from the county's two mill limitation. He said the problem would arise in the early part of 1977 when payments on both notes would approximate $49,000. Two mills on the county school district's current assessed valuation ($21 million) would only generate $42,000.

However, at Tuesday's session with the school board, Favre said the statute would allow the two loans to be combined if divided by five years. The school board owes $75,000 on a 1973 loan, but that will be reduced $25,000 with a payment in June.

By adding the $50,000 balance to the new loan request, Favre said, the board could support a $27,000 payment until both notes were cancelled.

Under the plan, $25,000 on the old note and $2,000 on the new note would be paid until 1978 when the old note would be retired.

The board would then have three more years to pay $81,000 at $27,000 a year on the new loan.

Several parents of Gulfview Elementary School students followed up on a move announced last week to seek a public apology and "specific names, dates and times" from beat one board member Oris Ladner concerning a statement he made last month.

At a Jan. 6 meeting, Ladner said he saw "teacher's aides doing the teaching while the (Gulfview) teachers stood in the cafeteria smoking cigarettes and drinking coffee."

Mrs. Juanita L. Shiyon, group spokesman, read a letter addressed to the board and signed by members of various school organizations, citing Ladner's statement as "erroneous in many aspects and without justification." The letter cited the following points:

—The teachers who work with aides do not smoke.

—The teachers' coffee pot is located in the teachers' lounge.

—The majority of the teachers at Gulfview have one free period during the day. (It is their choice as to how they spend this period).

—It is against the regulations of the Health Department for persons to smoke in the cafeteria.

Ladner refused an apology, claiming "Nobody is going to make me apologize. Teachers will do the teaching from now on regardless of whose feelings I hurt."

Mrs. Shiyon then asked Ladner how many visits he had made to the Lakeshore school, and charged that he had been inside the school only once from November, 1974 through December, 1975. In response, Ladner said "I've been there quite a few times; they didn't see me but I was in the school."

When told that several of the "better teachers" might leave due to Ladner's statement, he replied "If the shoe fits, then let them walk out."

Ladner said the school has been a "laughing stock for the last few years"

FmHA defends regulation

Meter ordinance proves stumbling block

The unavailability of persons to obtain FmHA mortgage loans to build homes in Waveland will be investigated by Waveland city attorney Lucien Gex. Gex was instructed to look into the matter after the matter was brought to the Waveland council's attention Tuesday night.

The dispute apparently hinges around the location of improved property gas meters. A Waveland ordinance stipulates the meters must be located on city property in front of each house.

FmHA regulations, however, demand the meters be located alongside or to the rear of the improvement.

In support of the ordinance, Mayor John Longo told the council that the meters were part of the municipally owned gas system; that their location was to permit rapid access in case of fire (permitting the gas supply to be turned off), and to facilitate the work of meter maintenance and reader crews to have them available at all times.

"Watch dogs or other deterrents make it practically impossible for city employees to maintain regular monitoring of this equipment if it is located on private and often fenced property, the mayor said.

"Now we are told that Farmer's Home Administration requirements prohibit the granting of mortgage money to new construction within this municipality because of this ordinance," Longo said.

"Further it is our understanding FmHA is stating the houses must be all electric, a factor which would increase heating costs and add further imposition to the prospective builder," the mayor continued.

FmHA County Supervisor Kenneth Lee affirmed the regulatory requirement on Wednesday, saying that he could do little more than abide by the rules and policies of the administration.

Lee said the matter had been discussed at state level and personally felt that the aesthetic value of property improvement more than warranted the regulation's value.

"We are entrusted with spending the taxpayer's money and feel that it is not in their best interests to have investment in property with a meter out front.

Lee said that one of the reasons so many houses are on the market is because of the unsightly location of this meter.

He said, "The major percentage of municipalities in the United States permit the installation of these meters alongside or behind the house, as indeed does the City of Bay St. Louis."

Answering criticism that applications were not being accepted for Waveland development, Lee said, "We take application from all who come to this office. However, when the property owner gets down to the planning stage, the specifications have to be in accordance with our regulations. These regulations include placement of the gas meter alongside or behind the house, or other structure."

Pass council postpones decision on controversial Parc Christian

By DAN BARBER

Pass Christian's mayor and board of aldermen temporarily warded off a decision on the controversial "Parc Christian" Tuesday night voting to ask the city Planning Commission for all of its deliberations in the matter.

Parc Christian is the name given by Long Beach realtor and developer William Braun to his proposal to subdivide property located at 931 East Scenic Drive for high priced condominium styled homes.

Mayor Steve Saucier and aldermen, apparently anxious to avoid what promised to be stringent opposition to any go ahead vote on the development, hastily went into executive session for 20 minutes after opening the meeting.

The development, which has been termed a "mini-subdivision," would offer lots in the $20,000 price range and homes in the $65,000 price range, according to Braun.

Approximately 50 persons who waited through a lengthy city court docket preceding the council session were quickly put off by Mayor Steve Saucier when the board quickly retired behind closed doors on a motion from Alderman Robert Goff.

Several citizens did get an opportunity to air their feelings on the matter after the mayor and aldermen returned to council chambers 20

NOO suit still pending; Gesell to study revisions

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Attorneys for the Navy will meet with U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell Feb. 6 for a "status conference" concerning the Navy's revision of an impact study on the Naval Oceanographic Office (NAVOCEANO) move to Hancock County, a spokesman in Gesell's office said Tuesday.

Gesell called for an amended impact study, with emphasis on the availability of housing and schools for racial minorities and low income families, when he denied a Navy motion to lift a Dec. 5, 1975 injunction against the proposed transfer of 1,300 from Navoceano's Maryland headquarters to facilities at the National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL).

Russ Greenbaum, Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA) spokesman at NSTL, said the Navy had submitted the amended study to Gesell and added that "work is still in progress to gather supportive data."

He said approximately 85 Navy "civilian employees had made the move to Hancock County from NAVOCEANO and NORDA offices in Maryland, Virginia, and Washington. Of those "now on board," he said 85 are NAVOCEANO personnel and 20-25 are NORDA employees.

According to Greenbaum, the employees are housed in seven buildings at the NSTL site. There is adequate office space, Greenbaum said, but aged, some equipment was temporarily located in trailers due to the December injunction which also halted construction.

Point of dispute

This historic old Victorian home on the old Martin property at 931 Scenic Drive in Pass Christian has become the focal point of a growing controversy over plans to raze the house for a "mini-subdivision." The Pass city council Tuesday night delayed any action until a review of the city Planning & Zoning Commission testimony. Long Beach realtor William Braun is seeking to develop the property.

County agent notes/ John Smith

Ryegrass pastures may need nitrogen application

Lots of rain, very cold temperatures and cloudy weather, coupled with a lack of nitrogen fertilizer, have reduced the growth of ryegrass pastures.

If nitrogen has not been applied since November, ryegrass pastures will respond to up to 65 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre — equivalent to 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate.

This fertilizer is needed to produce ryegrass growth for the next two months.

Most ryegrass pastures, like ryegrass, are deficient in nitrogen. The ryegrass pastures can efficiently use 45 to 60 pounds of nitrogen per acre now.

If the ryegrass is grown in combination with a clover, the nitrogen may not be needed since the clover should be manufacturing enough nitrogen to grow the mixture.

If the clover stand has been reduced by cold weather, additional nitrogen may be needed.

DAIRY BREEDING

An improved breeding program can result in more dairy profits. Here are some suggestions that may improve your profits.

Breed cows and heifers to the best bulls available. With few exceptions this will be bulls available through artificial insemination.

In order to cull properly and have enough replacements, breeding dairy cows to dairy bulls is a must.

The first calf is not inferior to calves born later to the same cow. Also the size of the new born calf is influenced more by the dam than the sire.

Don't use too many different bulls. Try to develop a few cow families and you will find it easier to correct weaknesses in the herd or to develop strong desirable characteristics.

Try to have each ewe calving every 12 months. A cow is more profitable if she calves once a year. Milk her 305 days and give her a 60 day dry period.

TIME TO LIME
There is still time to get lime or basic slag spread, for benefiting this year's crops.

On soils with a pH of less than 6.0, liming is an easy way to increase yields of soybeans as much as 10 bushels per acre, cotton one-half bale, or corn 30 bushels.

Apply lime or slag before spring seedbed preparation so they can become mixed with the soil during the preparation.

Two injured following Bayou Phillip collision

A freak accident on U.S. Highway 90 near Bayou Phillip Tuesday night left a Bay St. Louis man and a Mississippi Highway Patrolman hospitalized, and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department with one less patrol car.

Donald Scott, 78, Steward Rd., Bay St. Louis, is in poor condition in the Gulfport Memorial Hospital intensive care unit recovering from surgery following the accident. He faces a reckless driving charge.

Mississippi Highway

Patrolman Hershel Ladner, 27, who received leg lacerations, is reported in good condition at Hancock General Hospital.

According to Sheriff Sylvan Ladner, the accident occurred at 7 p.m. when Ladner stopped to assist sheriff's deputies Ronnie Peterson and Paul Bernard in their search of a van suspected of transporting illegal aliens.

Sheriff Ladner said the van, deputy's car, and highway patrol car were parked on one side of the highway and a second patrol car was parked across the road. Ladner said blue lights from the patrol cars were flashing on both sides of the highway apparently confusing Scott, who sideswiped the highway patrol car, then slammed into the rear of the deputy's car, leaving Ladner pinned between the bumpers of the deputy's car and the van.

After Mobile Medic had taken Ladner and Scott to Hancock General Hospital, sheriff's deputies arrested the driver of the van and his two Mexican alien passengers.

The three are being held in Hancock County Jail under $1,000 bond each awaiting a preliminary hearing today. Their charges include possession of marijuana, possession of firearms, and transporting illegal aliens.

Deblanc reappointed as P&H commissioner

James C. DeBlanc of Waveland was reaffirmed as that city's representative to the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Tuesday.

DeBlanc was originally appointed as a port commissioner in 1972, and now enters into his second term in that capacity.

Elected board secretary following his original appointment, he was re-elected to that position earlier this year at the commission's election of officers.

Mayor John Longo said the appointment was being made at this time to align the city's appointments with those of the governor.

The City of Bay St. Louis is to make it's Port and Harbor

Commission appointment known Feb. 16, the occasion of it's next session.

Mayor Carver said yesterday that no decision had been reached concerning identification of the city's intended appointee.

The port governing group is composed of one member from each county beat, and one member from each of the two municipalities.

City fund reflects deficit

Bay St. Louis' 21 fund accounts indicated a combined balance of $242,003.87 at Nov. 30, 1975 according to figures submitted by the mayor's office.

Broken down into their various categories, the amount of cash on hand in each group of accounts at the above date was as follows: City (general operating) Fund, overdrawn $25,475.59; bond and interest funds, except utility, $31,548.62; special purpose funds, except utility, $108,158.42; Utility Operation and Maintenance Funds, $16,651.17; Utility bond and interest funds, $59,455.48; and Utility special purpose funds, $26,190.18.

Certified nurse-midwives make it possible for pregnant women to get good prenatal care in some parts of the country where it was not available before, says the March of Dimes.

Chevis appointed medical director at Gulf View Haven

Dr. Sidney A. Chevis has been appointed to the newly created position of medical director at Gulf View Haven Nursing Home. It was announced by Edgar W. Santa Cruz Jr., administrator.

According to Santa Cruz, the appointment "represents a major step forward by the facility in its efforts to provide and maintain a high standard of nursing home health care services."

Dr. Chevis, a practicing physician in Bay St. Louis for the past five years, will follow the guidelines set by the American Medical Association, American Health Care Association and other recognized authorities in performing his duties.

Correction

The Sea Coast Echo incorrectly stated that Bay St. Louis Mayor Warren Carver cast the dissenting vote in a council motion to override the recommendation of the city Planning and Zoning Board to close Bay Auto Glass Works for zoning violations. Rather, councilman Lucien Kidd voted against the motion, not Mayor Carver.

Margaret Chase Smith

MSU political forum attracts first feminist

MISSISSIPPI STATE, Miss.—She never considered herself a feminist. The term was unheard of in 1940 when she was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives from Maine. Yet former senator Margaret Chase Smith, the only woman to serve in both houses of Congress, did much to help smooth the way for many women in government service today.

Mrs. Smith, along with Mississippi senator John C. Stennis, Georgia senator Sam Nunn, former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, former Under Secretary of State George Ball, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter Charles Bartlett, and leading American political scholar on the Soviet Union Dr. Rolf Thoen will appear at the first John C. Stennis Forum on Politics Feb. 9 and 10 at Mississippi State University. The Forum is sponsored by the John C. Stennis Chair in Political Science, in conjunction with the MSU Departments of Political Science, History, and Communication.

During her more than 32 years of government service, Mrs. Smith accumulated a long list of "firsts." She was the first woman elected to the Senate without prior appointment to fill a vacancy, the first Republican woman senator, and the first woman elected to a leadership post in the Senate as chairman of the Conference of All Republican Senators. At the 1964 Republican National Convention, Mrs. Smith's name was placed in nomination for President, the first woman to be so named. She received the second highest number of votes.

A former columnist and author whose name has appeared repeatedly on Gallup's Poll of the Most Admired Women, Mrs. Smith rose to top Republican committee positions while in the Senate. The committees included Armed Services, Space, Appropriations Subcommittee on Foreign Relations, Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee, CIA Subcommittee, and Reorganization Subcommittee.

Mrs. Smith was recently named a Distinguished Political Leader by the New York University School of Law. She is the recipient of more than 80 honorary degrees from colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Her appearances during the Forum will include a panel discussion Monday morning at 10 a.m. with Stennis. A student panel will address questions to both of the participants.

Later that evening at 5:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom, Mrs. Smith will be the principal speaker at the banquet.

Tickets for the banquet are $5.50 and available by contacting Dr. Wendell Cook Jr., Local Arrangements Committee, Drawer H, Mississippi State, Miss., 39762.

Shades of Mardi Gras

Wallace Industrial Construction crews were busy this week working on parade routes inside City of Waveland. Concrete slab being poured here is at corner of Nicholson Ave. and Beach Boulevard. Ray O'Brien, Wallace field superintendent,

Lott minimizes Act's threat

Congressman Trent Lott (R-Miss.) today revealed that he is "firmly opposed" to legislation designed to reduce the "importance of the parental role in child-rearing and development."

Lott's announcement was in response to a flood of public opposition to H.R. 2956, the Child and Family Services Act. The bill is currently pending in the House Select Education Subcommittee with no action scheduled for the near future.

Lott cautioned constituents that fact sheets circulating in South Mississippi contain "certain inaccuracies."

"Nevertheless, I am opposed to the bill simply because it is a bad bill," he said. "It is not in the best interests of the people of this nation and I plan to speak against it, work against it, and vote against it."

"Let's not beat around the bush about it," he said in his weekly news report to his constituents in Mississippi's Fifth Congressional District. "As a parent myself, I don't favor - and won't support - any legislation designed to reduce the importance of the parental role in child-rearing and development. I simply don't want the federal government raising my children for me."

The Veterans Administration's National Cemetery System has announced plans for new cemeteries in Massachusetts, California, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Lott expressed doubt that the bill will ever reach the House floor for a final vote. He expects it to be "bottled up" in committee for "quite a while."

"If for no other reason, the bill should be rejected simply because it is duplicative of already-existing federal, state and local legislation and programs," he added. "Federal child care assistance, alone, is currently available from 50 or more federal sources."

A version of this bill actually passed the House and Senate in 1971 as a little-noticed amendment to the Office of Economic Opportunity Extension Act. President Richard Nixon vetoed the measure and sent it back to the Congress, where his veto was sustained. It has failed to win significant support in Congress since that time.

Jess White named Stennis coordinator

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Senator John C. Stennis today announced the appointment of Jess White as State Coordinator for his re-election campaign to the U.S. Senate.

The 31-year-old White was formerly Secretary of the Mississippi State Senate and is the son of the late former Commissioner of Insurance Jesse L. White Sr. and Mrs. Marguerite White.

A native of Jackson, White is a graduate of the University of Mississippi and is married to the former Patricia Taylor of Jackson.

In announcing the appointment, Stennis also expressed "deep appreciation" for what he termed "overwhelmingly favorable response" to his recent formal announcement that he would be a candidate for re-election. "I've received thousands of letters of support," Stennis said.

"Many contained small contributions from people in every area of the state and from all walks of life. I am extremely pleased with the response and I look forward to having active organizations in every county of Mississippi. I am confident that Jess will be a tremendous asset to the campaign and be an excellent state coordinator."

Commenting on his recent statewide tour, Stennis said, "The people are concerned about the cost of living. They made that very clear to me. They want a Senator who will stay right on the frontline and use his personal influence to help solve the problems with our economy and to seek additional jobs and employment opportunities for Mississippians."

Harrison Court upholds DuPont discharge permit

Save the Bay Inc., an environmentalist group, suffered a setback Tuesday when Harrison County Chancery Court Judge Frank Alexander ruled in favor of the state pollution control agency and upheld waste discharge per-

New tax credit gives '30 break

The IRS admits that filling out a tax return may not be fun, but everyone who paid Federal income tax in 1975 has at least one tax break coming. On their 1975 Federal tax returns, taxpayers can claim a $30 personal credit for themselves and each of their dependents.

The credit amounts to $30 for each regular exemption to which the taxpayer is entitled. However, the credit does not apply to the blind and the age 65 or over exemptions to which some taxpayers are entitled.

The new credit does not affect the $750 allowed for each exemption when figuring taxable income, and it doesn't matter whether the taxpayer files a long Form 1040 or short Form 1040A.

questions about the personal exemption tax credit should visit or call an IRS office.

The IRS reminds taxpayers that the $30 exemption tax credit is a credit against their tax liability. If no tax is owed, the credit does not apply.

Four wagons will be in the group representing Pennsylvania, Louisiana and Mississippi. The fourth wagon will be the ever present chuck wagon - familiar to all of the early pioneers.

Each wagon will be drawn by two horses. Twenty-1976 pioneers will be in the group arriving in Pass Christian.

A special group of entertainers will arrive with the wagons and will present two free shows in front of the Pass Christian harbor at 2 p.m. Saturday Feb. 28 and again at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 29.

The presentation of the wagon train in Pass Christian is being coordinated by the Pass Christian Bicentennial Committee, E. Davis McCutcheon, chairman.

New drivers license has organ donor designation

The Department of Public Safety will mail approximately 55,000 driver license renewal notices to Mississippi motorists during February, according to John Beall, director of the Driver License Examining Bureau.

Mississippians who are 21 years of age and older are asked to pay special attention to a box on the notice which reads, "If you wish to be an organ donor check here."

According to Beall, the notice "lets us know that the renewer wishes to have the words 'organ donor' printed on the new license."

Beall said that "this is not a binding legal agreement and written permission must be obtained by the attending physician from an immediate member of the deceased person's family before any organ can be removed from the body."

He said that in addition to the organ donor designation, Mississippians who desire to have their picture (a head and shoulders shot) on their driver license can do so by taking the renewal notice directly to the Department of Public Safety Headquarters in Jackson, and the picture will be made there for $1.

Leadership?

It appears the city of Pass Christian's mayor and aldermen are more inclined to be politicians than civic leaders.

The actions of Mayor Steve Saucier and aldermen to dodge public discussion on a matter of interest to all citizens of their city—zoning which affects the city's character—is no example of civic leadership.

Rather it is a coldly calculated attempt to return government to that of a totalitarian state—behind closed doors. We do not think this is what the people of Pass Christian envisioned when they elected these men to serve them.

The remarks of alderman Charles Logan are simply incredulous if one is to believe Mr. Logan.

Mr. Logan publically stated that he personally didn't even know what was going on concerning the subdivision zoning dispute.

Either Mr. Logan lives with his head in the sand or he's been on a long vacation. It seems incredulous to us that anyone living in Pass Christian could not be aware of the zoning controversy. It has been reported in four Gulf Coast newspapers for the past three weeks including a rather lengthy discussion in that city's own publication, The Tarpon Beacon.

For a public official, elected to provide leadership to the city, to claim ignorance on something that has been this publicized and on the lips of so many Pass Christian residents is simple tom foolery.

We hope citizens interested in this matter will persist in their attempts to be heard fairly.

Does it matter?

REPRINTED FROM THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

WASHINGTON - The most important question of the campaign year may not be who will be elected President. It may be whether most people think it matters who wins.

And right now, according to leading public-opinion pollsters, huge numbers of people think it doesn't matter. Increasingly, the pollsters say, voters see the election as merely an exercise to resolve the ambitions of politicians—a power struggle essentially irrelevant to the problems of inflation and unemployment that intensely concern the people themselves.

"There is a belief that the (political) process is so unresponsive and dishonest that it cannot be used by voters for their purposes," says Patrick Caddell, a pollster for many Democrats. His Cambridge Survey Research surveys show that fully "four out of 10 respondents say it doesn't make any difference who wins" elections.

A grim array of polling evidence indicates that "affection and cynicism toward politics and government have become pervasive after a confidence-shattering decade stretching from Vietnam through Watergate and a deep recession. Hence:

—By a margin of almost two to one, a Caddell poll finds that people believe "most politicians don't really care about me."

—63 percent believe that "people with power are out to take advantage of me," according to the Louis Harris Survey.

—43 percent believe that "quite a few of the people running the government are a little crooked," according to Market Opinion Research Inc., the polling firm for President Ford's campaign.

—68 percent feel that "over the last 10 years, this country's leaders have consistently lied to the American people," a Caddell poll finds.

—57 percent believe that "both the Democratic and Republican parties are in favor of big business rather than the average worker," according to a survey by Peter Hart, a pollster for many Democrats. Polling isn't an exact science, of course, but the regular measures of public attitudes by both published and private polls are much more solidly based than the volatile "test elections" of whether the public favors one candidate or another. Pollsters themselves say the early polls on candidates aren't reliable predictors of how people will finally vote.

However, the uniformity of the findings leaves little doubt that the polls documenting massive hostility toward politics are generally accurate. That hostility appears to be part of a public belief that the country has sunk into deep trouble. Last November, for example, the Roper Organization reported that 71 percent of the public believed the country was "on the wrong track."

An erosion of confidence in the country's future, which polls indicate has been under way for several years, has recently been accompanied by deterioration of personal expectations. The Gallup Poll, citing a series of opinion tests it has used since 1959, reported last fall that "for the first time, (there is) a significant decline in the way Americans rate the quality of their own lives and in their expectations for the future."

"If this trend persists, it is within the realm of possibility that the U.S. will in the near future experience its greatest crisis of confidence since 1932," declares Irving Crepi, executive vice president of the Gallup Organization.

There are signs, however, that public optimism is returning as the economy improves. The Roper Organization, in a just-completed poll, finds that 58 percent expect 1976 to be a "better year" for the country while only 13 percent think it will be worse (the rest think 1976 will be about the same as 1975).

Moreover, Roper reports that 47 percent expect a better year in their personal lives, up from 34 percent in January 1975. "This is a remarkable shift in the public's outlook and is probably due to a rising level of economic confidence," the Roper

CHILD AND FAMILY SERVICES

Let's not beat around the bush about it. I am opposed—firmly opposed—to H. R. 2966, the Child and Family Services Act.

As a parent myself, I don't favor—and won't support—ANY legislation designed to reduce the importance of the parental role in child-rearing and development. I simply don't want the federal government raising my children for me.

That's said and done, I want to turn my attention to the tremendous amount of mail we've been getting in my Washington office on this particular bill. It seems that "fact" sheets have been circulated, urging America's citizens to rise up and protest this bill. If you've seen one of these "fact"

Washington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

sheets, please be advised that they do contain certain inaccuracies.

Nevertheless, the Child and Family Services Act is a bad bill in my opinion and I plan to voice my opposition to it. It is currently pending in the House Select Education Subcommittee with no action scheduled for the near future.

A similar bill actually passed the House and the Senate in 1971 as a little-noticed amendment to the Office of Economic Opportunity Extension Act. Fortunately, President Nixon vetoed the measure and sent it back to the Congress, where his veto was sustained.

The bill's Senate supporters passed it again in June of 1972 as the Comprehensive Headstart, Child Development and Family Services Act. The House never voted on it that year. In this Congress, however, the push has been revived by Senator Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Congressman John Brademas of Indiana. H. R. 2966 in the House and S. 626 in the Senate are both known as the Child and Family Services Act.

To address each of the inaccuracies in the "fact" sheets currently being circulated is impossible in this limited space. One graphic example should suffice.

One of the sheets quotes something called "Charter of Children's Rights of the National Council of Civil Liberties" and leads you to believe that these "children's rights" are becoming part of the Child and Family Services Act. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Those "children's rights" are NOT part of the legislation. If the bill should unfortunately pass, parents will still have the right to discipline their children without fear of prosecution under the law.

Those "rights" were quoted in the Congressional Record, as the fact sheets indicate, but NOT as part of H. R. 2966. They were included in the Record by opponents of the bill, who were quoting from the "Charter of Children's Rights" of the British Advisory Center of Education and the National Council of Civil Liberties.

If for no other reason, the bill should be rejected simply because it is duplicative of already-existing federal, state and local legislation and programs. Federal child care assistance, alone, is currently available from 50 or more federal sources.

For those who say that the federal government is not doing anything for the education and health of our children, consider this sobering statistic: more than $13.2 BILLION of HEW's 1974 budget was devoted to some 200 programs providing for health, education and welfare services for our children.

I could go on and on, but the point I want to make is simply this: H. R. 2966, the Child and Family Services Act, is not in the best interests of the people of this nation and I plan to work against it.

BICENTENNIAL NEWS & NOTES

by Joe Pilet

The name of the game is "Bicentennial." I have just invented it, so don't rush out to your nearest game counter center and try to buy it. At least—not yet.

You can, however, start playing it right away by making up your own cards. That alone is most entertaining.

Here are the rules: Any number of people may play. Any number of cards may be marked with titles such as Costs, Schools, Clothing, Churches, etc.

Each player takes a card. Player states the subject and on "instant recall" looks into the past and brings to mind past history, then current condition and projects the trend into the future.

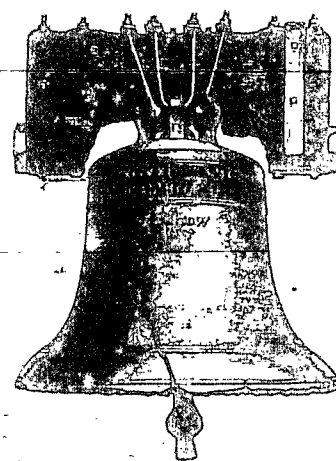

Example: Should I draw a card marked "Costs" I would think back to a book written by the late John H. Lang of Pass Christian and called The History of Harrison County. In April of 1929 Mr. Lang dictated to his daughter, Jane:

"There used to be so little money in circulation more labor was required for a dollar. Flour cost three to four dollars per barrel, meat five or six dollars per barrel and corn was fifty cents per bushel. Eggs were seven and a half to ten cents a dozen and chickens sold for ten to twenty cents each."

Bringing that to the year 1976 and quoting from local supermarket salaries and a drop in production? Is the quality of our automobiles and our major appliances slipping to a lower standard for "excellency?"

Do you like the game? Try the subject Housing, Schools, Entertainment, Statesmen, and right on...

W. W. Traylor, secretary of Keep Mississippi Beautiful, announced from his Jackson office that planting "The Avenue of Magnolias" on Interstate 10 in Hancock County is scheduled to get under way on Monday, Feb. 2. Among memorial trees to be planted are those dedicated to Mrs. Lula Hart Williams, Lt. Joe Ebert Allen and Colonel Nune C. Pilet. Should you wish to take part in this project you may do so by sending your contribution to "Avenue of Magnolias", Box 609, Jackson, Miss. 39205. Should you wish your tree planted as a memorial, be sure to send along the name of the person whose memory you wish honored.

The Mississippi Gulf Coast Ballet with guest star Bruce Wells is scheduled for Gulfport Feb. 20-21. Mark your calendar for this worthwhile feature. Fortunately this date falls on Saturday and Sunday so there should be a large turn out.

You'll most assuredly want to mark your T.V. viewing calendar for each Tuesday, Channel 12, 8 p.m., to follow "THE ADAMS CHRONICLES." This lavish $6 million production with the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, and Atlantic Richfield Company sharing the cost, spans the years from 1750-1800 and focuses on four generations of Adamses. Arthur Unger said: "I have viewed the first four of the segments as well as a half-hour promotional sampler for the whole series. They are completely acted, superbly mounted." The first episode took John to 1700; the second takes John and his family to 1776 and the Declaration of Independence; then the third chronicles antagonism toward Benjamin Franklin while the fourth focuses on John's temporary exile as minister to England.

State Senator Robert Hardy is soon to furnish suggestions for preparing information to be stored in our Hancock County Historic "time capsules." This information will assist in calling up guide lines for selections to be stored in each of our bank vaults.

specials I would find bacon at $1.49 per pound, eggs $70 to $80 a dozen, butter $1.49 a pound and coffee—Instant coffee six ounces $1.82 plus tax. I would add there seems plenty of money in circulation but greatly devalued.

Projecting a prediction into the future I would say "In Lisbon butter and margarine have completely disappeared from the shelves of the supermarket. A half-pound jar of instant coffee is priced at almost six dollars, potatoes are 60 cents a pound, and gasoline equivalent to U. S. "regular" costs $2.46 a gallon." (I got this information from Lisbon's O. JOURNAL together with this quotation: "There have been those who have warned us for a long time of the unreal character of a prosperity based on rising salaries accompanied by a pronounced drop in production. Food shortages and skyrocketing prices could be just a warning of what is to come for the Portuguese." The Government added a severe remark: "We have lived in an atmosphere of total mendacity that led people at all levels to produce and work less but to earn and spend more."

After adding up my score, my fellow players might well ask: why have your pessimistic prediction as to what is going on in Portugal. My only reply would have to be another question: Is our present prosperity based on rising

Hitch up your oxen

By JOE PILET

Had the pure pleasure of attending a meetin' the other night. Sat there listening while some young fellers and a few "city slickers" displayed their ignorance about oxen. Could-a set them straight on a number of points only nobody asked me.

Could-a told 'em oxen played a mighty big part in the settling and development of Hancock County. Could-a said ox yokes was made mostly outen black gum whilst ox bows most generally, came from well cured hickory poles properly bent and cured for that purpose.

Could-a even reckoned the weight at about 75 to 80 pounds and I guarantee you that 'aint no light yoke to bear.

What brought all this discussion into focus was some big talk about certain folks in these parts planning on bringing their ox-teams and log-hauling rigs over to the Hancock County Fair Grounds to meet the Wagon Train encampment and give school children, young people and the unenlightened a chance to see for themselves what went into the making of this country.

Seems like a good idea.

Got a hankering to hear a few "Gee-Haws" myself and listen again to a bit of first class whip poppin'.

As I recollect, a good ox driver held a high and respected position. His qualifications called for a deep understanding of "ox sense."

Nobody asked me, of course, but I could-a said a ox driver had names for animals. Sensible names. Nothing like horses with cooked up names like "Man O' War," "Second-Time-Round" and such tom-fool nonsense. An ox name suited, such as "Broad," "Red," "Speck," "Walleye." An ox man worth his salt knew to git started two hours before sun-up and put out plenty of feed. No ox requires light to eat by, however, he works better when he's full and he's a slow eater.

Good idea, too, to turn 'em loose round mid-afternoon for grazing before sun-down. They mostly quit eating about dusk-dark.

Swear-to-Goodness them fellers didn't even know the difference between a Conestoga wagon and a Prairie Schooner—nor did they know that a Carry-Log is the name of the vehicle them ox teams used when they pulled logs to the saw mill or the log-raffing pond as the case might be! Bet them fellers didn't have a 25 word vocabulary when it come right down to talk about such basics as tailcarts, windlass, bog-ground, tongue-yolk, lead ox, offox, bell ox, down-hill brake ox.

Course I could-a told 'em only they didn't ask me and it would have been a little indiscreet and acting unadvisedly to speak out of turn. Then, too, best make a few allowances. Bet none of them fellers was ever even slightly exposed to hill raisin like I was.

Might be a right good idea if'n we all showed up over at the fairgrounds just to have a personal acquaintance with ox teams. Believe they are not listed as "Rare" or "Threatened with extinction."

Course nobody asked me, but should anybody seek my advice—why I'd say: "Better gather up your family, hitch-up your horse or crank up your Ford as the case may be and get yourselves over to the Wagon Train encampment on February 26 to see the sights. Might be your last chance in a lifetime! Leastwise that's my impression."

Things I wish a man would do: I would like his hair cut short. I like a mustache cut short, and one that shows his mouth; similar to the kind Clark Gable had. Those mustaches that are long and like a brush repel me.

I like a clean man a little perfume helps: A Van Dyke mustache and goatee is nice, but don't hide most of his face. Keep it trimmed.

That was quite a deal.
Even in 1848.
Only problem was:
how would you raise

Well, thanks to people

that problem was no

America can't.

You can bury your head in the sand, but . . .

"I can't" are words seldom used in America. That's why our achievements have been so great. Now is not the time to change this tradition. Especially in view of the big problems we face.

Our nationwide energy shortage is one of our largest problems. Following the tradition that has made us so strong, we must solve this particular problem as Americans.

Americans know that no problem is unsolvable, no challenge is too great, no job is too big.

So, let's all of us meet the challenges of today's energy problems head-on, with action now. We must do more than talk about the problem; we must begin working together to solve it.

A cold, hard fact.

Our energy crisis is real—very real. It won't be wished away. It won't solve itself. Today, demand for energy exceeds supply. It's that simple. And it's that fact we all must accept. When all of us accept this fact, we have taken the first step toward the solution. Precious time has already been squandered on seemingly endless discussions on the reality of this fact, or on trying to find someone to blame for the problem. Now, we all must begin fixing the situation because this winter there will not be enough natural gas available to satisfy the nation's demands.

You might as well blame Mother Nature.

Why won't there be enough natural gas for all of our needs this winter? Quite simply, because natural gas is a depletable resource. As demand has gone higher and higher, new gas reserves have become harder and more expensive to find.

So what do we do? Do we simply wring our hands and look for someone to blame for a shortage that nobody wants? Maybe we just blame Mother Nature for not making enough natural gas to begin with?

The problem is that fixing the blame doesn't provide any more gas. We need to be working together to find answers to the problem. That we must do.

How bad is it?

It's not good, but it could be worse. In fact, in some parts of the country—particularly the northeast—curtailment of natural gas possibly could reach into high-priority categories of use.

We do not expect this to happen this winter in the Gulf South states we serve. Nor do we anticipate any shortage of gas for those industries using gas for process and feedstock purposes.

The cutbacks in United's service area will mostly affect large industrial users and electric power generation plants that have been assigned lower priority for natural gas by the Federal Power Commission. Human needs come first, high-efficiency and smaller gas-dependent industrial needs come next, larger industrial gas consumers that are better able to use other fuels come last.

Supply is being allocated in an attempt to equitably distribute natural gas on a basis which least affects the "human needs" users.

What about you?

As a resident of the Gulf Coast area, you will receive natural gas deliveries for your home this winter, as will hospitals, schools, small commercial establishments and other human-needs users. This assumes, of course, no temporary disruption of transmission due to accidents or acts of God.

It's crucial that everybody make a real effort to conserve natural gas where they live and work. Keep your thermostat at 68° in the day, 64° at night when you're sleeping. Also, check your doors and windows to see that they're closed and sealed tight. Insulate outside walls and attics to reduce heat loss and spare the gas. It may seem like a lot of hassle, but remember, you're not just saving gas and money, you're helping industry keep people on the job this winter. Be unselfish and use only the gas you really need. Don't waste it.

A cold winter can make it worse.

That's a fact we must live with, too. When the temperature drops, more gas is consumed for heating purposes. A one-degree temperature drop in our service area when furnaces are on produces an additional consumption of about 35 million cubic feet of gas per day. So, you can see conservation measures will pay off for everybody.

What are we doing about it?

At United Gas, we're doing everything we possibly can to ease the shortage.

We're encouraging conservation through messages like this to try to ease the impact for everyone. We're working night and day to secure additional supplies of gas for our customers. We're working with regulatory authorities in an attempt to find equitable solutions to this serious problem.

We've had some success, but not enough.

As an interstate gas transmission company, we do not have big supplies of fossil fuels in the ground. We have historically purchased natural gas from producers and delivered it to utilities and industrial customers through our transmission facilities.

Because the price we can pay for gas at the wellhead is fixed by government mandate at a price far below the price producers can receive from non-regulated intrastate buyers, it has become increasingly difficult for us to buy additional reserves onshore as they are developed.

Thus, we have been forced to look to Federal waters in the Gulf of Mexico in our search for additional supplies of gas. These reserves are dedicated to the interstate market.

Huge sums of money are required to find, develop and transport gas to market from offshore. And, we have committed the funds necessary to secure additional supplies.

As an equal partner with three other companies, we are seeking approval of the Federal Government to build a $343 million, 200-mile pipeline network to tap important new gas reserves in the Gulf of Mexico offshore Texas. If approved this line will deliver significant new supplies of gas into United's Gulf South service area.

In addition, United is also a 50-per-cent partner in Sea Robin Pipeline Company's $160 million, 300-mile pipeline system in Federal waters offshore Louisiana. This system is already carrying important new gas supplies to United's customers.

We also have advanced significant sums of money to offshore producers in return for commitments on gas reserves that are ultimately developed. This program now represents a commitment of many millions, but it began to produce new gas for our customers in 1975 and we anticipate more coming on-stream in succeeding years.

Even with all this activity, we as a company and the nation as a whole must still face the reality that demand continues to outpace supply.

Short term and long term.

Short term, we all must learn to live with the energy shortage and adapt to the difficulties this presents. The more we all conserve, the more gas we'll be able to supply those whose service is restricted.

Perhaps, sometime in the 1980's, demand for natural gas will lessen as other fuels fill some of the gap between supply and demand. As this occurs and as, inevitably, higher costs for fuels create pressures which force conservation, we could reach a balance between supply and demand.

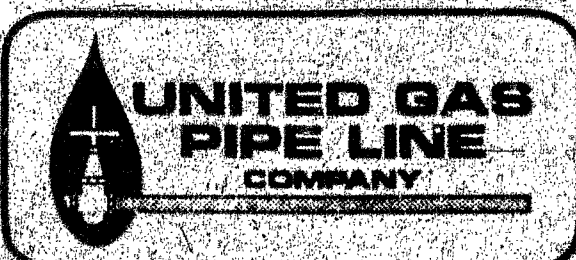

Even then, the pressure to conserve must not diminish because we all must remember that depletable natural resources cannot be regenerated for future generations. By practicing conservation while our industry works on long-range solutions, we'll be doing the positive things that fit our posture as Americans.

Let's keep the lines of communications open.

We know that the nationwide natural gas shortage has caused everyone to ponder about the future. Our industry has invested millions of man-hours in the search for answers to the same problems that concern you.

Many of the questions you may have about our company and the gas shortage are answered in a new brochure outlining what we are doing and how you can help. To get your copy, just drop us a line to: Straight Talk, United Gas Pipe Line Company, P.O. Box 1020, Jackson, Mississippi 39205.

There's a big job to be done: Conserve natural gas.

WASHINGTON EVENTS AFFECTING OUR COMMUNITY

REGULATORY RAMPAGE

Even the most nobly conceived and necessary arms of government seem prone to that highly localized disease, Washingtonitis. Certainly, this is the case with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) which, since its creation in 1970, has attempted to upgrade the working environment for millions of Americans.

Not satisfied with the amount of surplus paper work already generated, however, OSHA recently has taken to its printing presses to unleash another barrage of rules, regulations and regulations upon those still reeling from previous ones.

OSHA's prime targets this time are chemicals used by industry—from chemical plants to machine shops to university laboratories to dry cleaners—and the agency is feverishly pumping out 400 "standards" at the rate of 15 per month.

These standards go beyond simply maintaining the cleanliness of the workplace. They require exhaustive medical examinations of workers, broad emergency plans and periodic safety meetings, all approved by the presence of a chemical safety level.

In and of itself, the proposed standards are not so much the cause of the regulatory rampage as they are the result of it. OSHA has mandated its own chemical safety level.

when Mrs. Shiyou said she felt the incident had created a "precarious condition" as far as public opinion was concerned.

Randolph said he had apologized to the Gulfview teachers not implicated in the statement, but added "I wasn't apologizing for Mr. Lader."

Following the meeting, Mrs. Shiyou said the parents planned no further action against Lader at this time. "I think we've made our point," she said.

In other business, the board refused to comment on the circulation of a petition in Pearlman calling for the establishment of a ninth grade class at Gulfview next year.

The petition was brought to the board's attention by a Pearlman resident who said persons refusing to sign it were rudely treated by those circulating the petition.

Randolph and Lader, the only board members aware of the petition, said they had not seen it, therefore could not comment.

Following an hour and 20 minute executive session, the board voted to reemploy Federal Coordinator Harlin Hill and all current principals and assistant principals in the district for one year, with the exception of James Baldrice, Charles B. Murphy.

Murphy Elementary School principal, and F. E. Breland, Hancock North Central principal who is serving on a temporary basis.

Manuel Cuevas, board president, said the board would meet with Baldrice next week and determine his contract at that time.

Randolph said the board wished to meet with Baldrice to ask him "personal questions," but added that he did not expect any difficulties in receiving the contract.

In routine business, the board voted to look into the cost of hiring night watchman for Charles B. Murphy and Hancock North Central schools.

Refused to let the student bus fare to attend a Hancock North Central basketball game in the Superdome Friday.

Based on a letter from the Region IV Office for Civil Rights concerning the board for eliminating racial slurs in the curriculum.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 9 at 7 a.m.

KERSHNER'S COMMENTARY

By Dr. Howard E. Kershner

Abuse of Credit, II

You stop at the service station and have your car filled with gas at 55¢ a gallon, which is the price you are accustomed to paying—20 gallons cost you $11 if you pay cash. However, you proffer your credit card. That takes time, hands, and processing equipment. If you pay your bill promptly, the charge is about 4%. That makes your gas cost you not 55¢ per gallon but 57.4¢ per gallon. You would have noticed that difference of 2.4¢ per gallon had it been posted on the gas pump, but since it came by way of the credit card, you do not notice it.

You go into a store and are told that you can buy on the easy payment plan for the same price as if you pay cash. The price is the same, but on the payment plan you are paying an average of about 18% interest. If the payments run for two years, it means that the item instead of costing you, say, $200, is costing you $218, plus the time, expense and postage of mailing in some 24 checks. At the new postal rates that means about $3.12.

If the price of the item you bought had been marked $221 you might not have bought it—but you thought you were getting it for $200.

Credit is a snare. It costs you more than you think. When you pay your motel bill, you think the room charge of $30 is rather high—but because of credit cards, the cost has been increased by about $1.20 more. But, you say, "I do not have to pay it." Yes, you do, for the innkeeper is forced to add that to his operating charges just the same as he has to add taxes, repairs, interest, amortization and the cost of maid service. To him it is a cost like any other cost and he must get it from you or go out of business. The same is true of the store and the service station.

That's one thing that the American people could do about the cost of living—learn to pay cash instead of using their credit cards. If you could reduce the cost of living by three or four percent by any other method, you probably would do it. But many do not seem to have learned that one can do it by tearing up one's credit card and using it only in case of emergency.

BE A HELPFUL CITIZEN!

You, the citizen, can help eliminate a major problem in our community—LITTERING. Trash and litter thrown on our streets, into our ditches and on vacant lots destroys the looks of our community, reflects on the character of our people, and spoils the beauty and cleanliness of our surroundings. It can sometimes be a fire hazard and a threat to health and safety.

Littering costs the American taxpayers more than a half-billion dollars yearly. The cost of keeping our own community in as presentable a condition as possible amounts to a sizeable amount of money.

YOU CAN HELP IN GAINING FOR US THE REPUTATION OF BEING THE CLEANEST CITY ON THE GULF COAST!

(This message is being sent to you by the Clean-Up and Beautification Department of the City of Bay St. Louis in cooperation with the various merchants throughout the community.)

Pass council...

20 minutes later. In the interim people waiting briefly began clapping until the councilmen returned.

Addressing the council Byron Stinson, who has been responsible for getting much of the opposition to the development organized, said he felt the developer had been less than honest in what had been told the public about the so-called "Pare Christian" development.

"They've done a great job of public relations," Stinson said, "a great job of trying to sell this thing to the public by giving it a fancy name and showing us a bunch of pretty artist's drawings."

"But is this what we're really getting?" Stinson asked.

"This developer is simply out to make money," Stinson said, "and to accomplish this he must evade and neglect present zoning regulations."

Under plans submitted to the city Planning Commission a variance would have been called for to approve the development since minimum footage requirements were not met for roads inside the development.

Stinson also took issue with the price of the lots and homes in the proposed subdivision. Who's going to buy these $85,000 homes, he asked and followed by asking council members why anyone would buy a lot in the development for $20,000 when they could get good lots elsewhere in the city for $10,000.

Others speaking out against the development said they were opposed to the development because they did not want to see the historic value of area disturbed.

Fred Kole with the Pass Historical Society said he was opposed to the development as it was submitted but thought the city and those present could reach a compromise if the developer would consider East-West streets through the park and drop two lots from the plans.

Attorney Randolph C. Jones said it was clear from the actions of the Planning Commission, which recommended that the city not accept the plans as submitted, that there was sufficient cause for not allowing the development at present.

"My interest in this is strictly legal," Randolph said. "I see no reason to resubmit this thing to the Planning Commission as the mayor has suggested since I assume they already have made a careful examination of this thing."

Give Valentines---

but don't lose your head

By JOE PILET

Mrs. Clarence Wallace, chairman in charge of decorations for the Trinity Parish House St. Valentine's Tea, plans to weave as much romance as research will permit into her several motifs.

The tea scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 14 between 3 and 5 p.m. plans to ponder the question "Who was Saint Valentine?"

No one seems quite sure, though some say a Roman priest. Others, however, claim he was the Bishop of Terni.

While in prison and awaiting execution he developed a friendship with the blind daughter of the jailer and by a miracle restored her sight.

The night before his execution, he expressed his love for the girl in a note and signed it "From your Valentine."

He was beheaded Feb. 14 in the year A.D. 270 as close as historians can make out.

The use of valentines in America began during the mid-18th century. Early cards

VALENTINE'S DAY
IS FEB. 14th

Legend tells us St. Valentine was imprisoned for giving aid and comfort to Christians during the pagan rule of Claudius II.

Claudius, who believed that married men made poor soldiers, issued a decree forbidding Romans to marry.

Not only did Valentine ignore the decree—he encouraged lovers to wed and gave blessings in the underground Christian church.

were in gilded motif. There were flowers, cupids, ornate lacework and, of course, hearts.

Esther Howland, whose father had a book store in Worcester, Massachusetts, was said to be the first to mass produce valentines—early valentines were hand-colored.

In the year 1910 the Hall brothers founded the firm of Hallmark, which has become a leader in greeting cards.

Garden group will undertake 'spruce up' campaign

The Bay-Waveland Garden Club and the Waveland Beautification Committee announced a joint project this week to "spruce up" the two communities in preparation for Bicentennial year activities this summer.

The Waveland Elementary School 'W' Club, a civic club of fourth, fifth, and sixth graders, will assist the organizations in planting 100 pear trees and other plants, and red, white, and blue verbena in flower beds near Buccaneer State Park, Elwood Park, Coleman Avenue, Highway 90, and other parts of the city.

The Garden Club is in charge of planting a holly tree and red, white, and blue verbena on the west lawn of the Hancock County courthouse.

The groups are also working together to plan the annual Arbor Day tree planting ceremony scheduled Friday, Feb. 13 at 10:30 a.m. at the Waveland hospitality center. At this time, planting will begin on the remaining trees for the Garden Club's Bicentennial project, "200 Trees For the Nation's 200th Birthday."

The Waveland Beautification Committee has designated March 11 as Red, White and Blue Day in Waveland, when 'W' Club members will sell red, white and blue flower seeds in the community.

Other 'W' Club projects include planting red, white, and blue verbena on each side of the sidewalk to be constructed from the beach to Haverty's Restaurant on Coleman Ave.; cleaning up four city streets in addition to those surrounding the school; and beautifying their own yards.

Beginning of the end

Members of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club, the Waveland Beautification Committee and the Waveland Elementary School 'W' Club met at the Waveland hospitality center Monday to plan the beginning of the end of the groups' Bicentennial tree planting project. Inspecting a tree planted last year for the Avenue of Magnolias are kneeling from left, Hayward Gossard and Lisa Peterson, 'W' Club president and vice president, respectively; and standing from left, Mrs. Dan M. Russell Jr., civic development chairman, Bay-Waveland Garden Club; Mrs. Lelyn Nybo, president, Bay-Waveland Garden Club; Mrs. Jean Glahn, hospitality center coordinator; and Mrs. William Gaudet, chairman, Waveland Beautification Committee.

For her coronation, Queen Tuleter wore a white crepe floor length gown trimmed with rhinestones and pearls. Her train was colored red, white, and blue; with the numerals 200 outlined in sequins indicating the years of our nation's history. His Royal Highness King Jones was attired in a white tuxedo and matching shirt, with a silver, satin cape, trimmed with red, silver and blue.

The royal crown was in silver and featured rhinestones and pearls.

A Junior Court represented the "Old South" and formed a procession to the music of "Gone With the Wind."

For the occasion the king wore a white tuxedo jacket with dark trousers, matching shoes, and satin cape in red, white, and blue satin. He was crowned with a silver crown.

Dukes to his majesty wore dark tuxedos with white shirts, dark bows, and buttons matching colors of the maid's gowns.

Court maids wore individually styled ante-bellum gowns and each carried nosegays of carnations in colors to match their pastel tinted gowns.

Chairmen of the ball were Mrs. Genevieve Cole and Mrs. Janell Necaise. Committee members included Leroy Necaise, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Shiyon, Mrs. T. Oliver, DAV Commander A. C. Jones, Larry Necaise, and Robert Henry.

Keesler extends May open house invitation

Major Dick Hoover of Keesler Air Force Base Information Center, briefed members of the Gulf Coast Bicentennial Committee last week on plans being formulated for Keesler's annual Open House, set for May 16.

Communities along the coastal area are extended an invitation to take part in the celebration carrying the theme "Heritage '76."

Last year's open house, the first in which the coastal community actively participated, brought more than 50,000 visitors to KAFB.

Major Hoover estimates this year's program will attract about twice that number.

An entire hangar will be allocated for exhibits with antique cars, antique planes, and Thunderbirds said to emit red, white and blue smoke now listed on attractions. The exhibits planned to highlight the history of the Gulf Coast are to be coordinated with entries from all communities.

Captain Jim Grant and Captain Brent A. Gates were designated as aides to work with the various communities.

It was explained Keesler will furnish sound equipment, decorations, exhibition booths and display cases and lighting as needed. No commercial displays will be allowed, and nothing from displays are to be offered for sale. Exhibits are limited to Heritage.

Groups attending the briefing were asked to inform their communities to make definite plans well in advance and so inform Keesler's Open House Planning Committee. This information will enable designation of sufficient space and the committee can make available necessary display cases and booths.

A large number of security guards will be on duty at all times to insure safety of the exhibits. There will be directional parking for automobiles. Hostesses in period costumes will assist with information where needed and assist visitors.

Exhibition hours begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. At that hour visitors may view the air show, planned to be "a spectacular of magnitude." All communities are encouraged to contribute exhibits.

OLA student wins hoop shot competition

Linda McCarthy, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy of Bay St. Louis, was named Southeastern "Hoop-shot" Champion Saturday following free-throw competition immediately prior to the Atlanta Hawks and New Orleans Jazz game in Atlanta.

The Our Lady's Academy seventh grade student, will represent the region at the National Finals set for March 21 in Kansas City. The "Hoop-shot" competition will precede the Kansas City Chiefs and Chicago Bulls league game.

Competing against 12- and 13-year-olds from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, and her home state, Linda gained the finals by defeating last year's title holder Melinda Gallimore of Puryear, Tennessee.

The Bay girl sank 20 of 25 free throws against Melinda's 17 of 25.

Miss McCarthy is in her second year of competition, being the state 11-year old champion in 1975.

Stephen Favre, 11, son of Mrs. Norma Favre, sixth grade student at Our Lady of the Gulf School, also made the Atlanta contest by virtue of his capturing state honors on Jan. 17 at William Carey College, Hattiesburg.

At the regional finals, Stephen lost out to the 10-11 year old 1975 National Champion, Chris Carpenter of Florida. Basketman Favre is in his first year of competition.

To qualify for the regional championship bid, the Bay distaff contender outpointed all top competitors on the Gulf Coast in her age group at an official "Hoop-Shoot" in Gulfport and captured like honors in state competition in Hattiesburg.

Sponsored by the B.P.O. Elks National Foundation, the event is in its fourth year. Both McCarthy and Favre were sponsored by the Gulfport Lodge 978. Dave Stallard is Hoop-Shot Committee chairman.

New scout troops announced for Kiln

Two new Boy Scout troops have been chartered in the Kiln area. Both are sponsored by the Kiln VFW Post 6285.

Boy Scout Troop 615 was formed for boys 11-years-old and over and will meet every Saturday from 3:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. at the Kiln VFW.

Scoutmaster for the troop will be Vernon Peterson. Webelos Pack 614 will initiate boys 10-years-old and under and will meet Tuesdays from 5 to 6 p.m. Webelos leader is Larry Necaise.

Webelos and Cub Scouts Den 1 for boys 8- to 9-years-old will meet at the home of Larry and Camille Necaise in Rocky Hill. Cub Scout Den 2 will soon be forming according to scout leaders.

In their first organized activity, Cubs, Webelos and Scouts joined together for a wildlife conservation field trip Jan. 17. Scouts hiked four miles and made small animal shelters in the woods.

A hike and foil cooking lesson is planned for Feb. 14. Each scout will bring and cook his own lunch as part of the requirement for the Cooking Skill award.

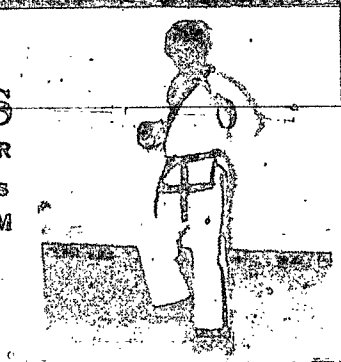

Boys and adults interested in scouting and in joining or working with one of the above troops should telephone 255-7053.

Three good reasons to buy a Boston Whaler.

We sawed this Boston Whaler into three pieces to prove a point we've been stressing for 16 years. Boston Whalers don't sink.

Not only did the three pieces of this 13 footer not sink, but each supported a man. In fact, the stern section also kept a 20 h.p. outboard high and dry.

The reason for our boat's incredible flotation is a unique Boston Whaler process called foam-sandwich construction. This means that our hull is actually a single solid block of foam with a fiberglass skin.

Besides providing tremendous flotation, our foam also serves as a structural core which is far stronger than conventional stringer or grid systems. So strong, in fact, that we offer a 10-year structural warranty on every Boston Whaler hull not restricted to the original owner.

There are many other reasons why Boston Whalers are the most valuable boats of their size in the world. Our catalog covers them all.

KANTCHA KETCHUM

By L.S. (Doc) Elliott

Fishing and hunting out at the marsh wasn't too good the past two weeks due to unusual low tides. There was no water in the marsh and bayous so fish had to be caught out in deep water. Mostly white trout and red fish were caught. Duck hunting and goose hunting were also affected. Most of the hunting will close soon the only hunting which will remain open a little longer are for snipe, woodcock and quail.

Snipe hunting should be the best because they seem to be plentiful. Shipe are wonderful eating and are a hard object to hit on the wing. Quail doesn't seem to be too plentiful according to those going after them.

Hunting woodcock is a lot of fun. They are found mostly on low land and marshy places. They make for good eating also. Of course rabbits can be killed as long as there is any hunting season open. A nice rabbit and spaghetti is good any old time.

As to fishing think it will pick up soon. For the past couple of weeks speckles have been caught up Jordan River and Bayou LeCoeux mostly by trolling by those enjoying that kind of sport.

Reports have come in that bass and perch are still being caught by trolling, casting and with the fly rod.

Heard that Argile Mitchell has been getting his share of bass. He is good at catching them if they can be found. Mitch is a past master at getting them and an old timer at the game.

Arthur Miller is also catching his share of bass on the fly rod and casting rod. He goes pretty regularly. Don't know who has been his fishing partner lately.

Elmer (Sheeter) Thornton, his wife and kids have been catching plenty perch while using earth worms for bait on perch poles. They are getting them on each trip out. That is one way of getting the prized little beauties. According to information perch are beginning to spawn now. Find out where they are spawning and you've got it made. This is a fishing family!

The Bay-Waveland Gun and Rod Club held its supper meeting last Monday night with a good attendance. Old and new business was transacted. It was announced that six meetings will be held this year. If you aren't a member become one. You will be glad you did. This club is complete.

SPORTSMAN OF THE WEEK - Roger Baudry is a teenager and a mighty good bass fisherman. As soon as school is over, he will be over to do both fresh and salt water fishing. Have patience, Roger.

of both hunters and fishermen.

Had a phone call from Gene Davis wanting to know why Kantcha Ketchum column was not in this week's paper. The reason was Dec had been under the weather. Gene has been one of our best fishing and hunting campers and said that he reads the column from stem to stern. Try to do better, Gene.

While fishing for Bass try to find a bank with a deep drop off. Cast the bait in shallow water and work out to the drop off. That is where the fish lie.

MR. AND MRS. L. T. LANDRUM ACCEPT DELIVERY OF THEIR NEW CHEVY LOW PICKUP TRUCK FROM TURAN-LANE CHEVROLET SALES REPRESENTATIVE JOHN LOWE. Mr. and Mrs. Landrum were the owners of a late pickup and they really like its performance. They decided that they wanted to buy a new one so they visited Turan-Lane Chevrolet. At Turan-Lane Chevrolet they talked to sales representative John Lowe who offered them a 1976 low pickup at a good deal. Mr. and Mrs. Landrum like the friendly customer service offered by Turan-Lane Chevrolet as well as their good deals.

According to "By Hook" who writes a sports column for the States-Item we learned that fish are now being caught in outside waters out of the marsh. There has been no water in the bayous where the fish are usually caught.

Bayou Caddy is a good place to fish most any old time if you go for salt water fish. Reds, speckles, white crabs, and live minnows are mighty good.

If you see Al Laddy tell him how the time is catching. That way I'll know you're the best.

Have been informed that the barricades at Black Bayou, Mills, and other bays down Middle River have been removed. This is mighty good news for those who fish these streams for bass and perch. The water is OK.

One of our bass fishermen got his share of the prized beauties last Wednesday. Other than Alder, Mauffrey, a past master at catching green trout, bass. There is a better place for catching them than in this neck of the woods. No reason for not making a
